CDL Self-Certification and Medical Card Information

Federal regulations require all CDL holders and applicants to certify how they operate a commercial motor vehicle when obtaining, renewing, transferring, or upgrading their CDL license. Those certifying a non-excepted type must submit their medical certificate to The Office of Driver Services and each subsequently issued medical certificate. If your medical certificate is only valid with a vision, diabetes or a skills performance evaluation variance granted by FMCSA, you must submit variance documents with your medical certificate, and each subsequently issued. All variances must display a “V restriction” on the CDL license. A “K restriction” must be displayed on the CDL license for Intrastate commerce.

- MCSA-5876 is the only medical certificate accepted.
- CDL holders cannot claim exemption from medical certification requirements because they are not currently operating in a non-excepted driving type. If not specifically included in type 2 or 4, you must maintain your medical certification or downgrade to a non-commercial license.
